I used the filestream approach to open the workbook because this allows you to open it with shared access - so that you can have the workbook open in Excel at the same time. The hellofromsandy.com( method won't work if the workbook is open elsewhere. Reading Excel Data programmatically was always a daunting task. Proprietary technologies, database drivers with limited functionality and often buggy output added to programmers' misery. The situation changed with Microsoft switching its office applications to Open XML format.
